

Political Science 210: Introduction to Empirical Methods in Political Science (Fall 2016)

Teaching Assistant: Ethan Busby, busby@u.northwestern.edu, ethanbusby.com/teaching

Section: Wednesday 6:00-6:50pm, Locy 106

Office Hours: Mondays 1-3pm, Scott Hall 228

Guidelines:

- Come to section prepared to discuss the materials from the readings and lectures. Section is most effective when you have questions and concerns ready for our meetings. Feel free to email me prior to section if you have specific areas or concerns that you would like me to discuss.
- Please be respectful of those around you when speaking, listening, and responding.
- Your attendance in section is part of your participation grade. I take role each time we meet.
- If you have concerns and questions and cannot come to my office hours, please email me, and we will find an alternative time to meet. Note that if you email me outside of typical working hours (8am to 7pm) or on weekends, I may not contact you until the next business day. I will do my best to respond to you as quickly as possible.
- Please check Canvas regularly for course readings, updates on assignments, and other communications from the TAs and Dr. Seawright.
- Any student with a disability requiring special accommodation should speak to AccessibleNU (847-467-5530 or accessiblenu@northwestern.edu) and Professor Seawright as soon as possible. Please confirm that Dr. Seawright has passed this information to me as quickly as possible.
- Please see the course syllabus for readings, class topics, and Dr. Seawright's office hours and contact information.

Important dates:

- Midterm – October 24th (Monday) in class
- Final – December 5th (Monday) from 3pm-5pm
